

John Healey's Expenses
Excerpted from Telegraph.uk.co

Mr Healey's mortgage interest payments stood at £691 per month in 2008, when he was also making regular claims for food, utilities, phone bills and cleaning.

In 2007 Mr Healey claimed £1,431 to replace his front door. The taxpayer even picked up the £16 bill for two days' worth of Congestion Charge payments made by his locksmith.

His claims in the same year included £7,612 for timber windows, £1,317 for a bed, sofa and shelving units, £95 for a swivel chair from Ikea and £25.98 for four pillows.

He also claimed £129 for a television, having claimed £299 for a television two years previously.
